“Making Organizations Meaningful”
Program Chair: Mary Ann Glynn

Theme for the 2016 Annual Meeting

Organizations occupy a central role in the ways we live our lives, for better and for worse. They enable us to be more efficient, to access goods and services faster than ever before, and to share information and experiences across the globe. And yet, they are not unproblematic. Recently, there have been highly publicized corporate scandals, Wall Street corruption, and failures of government to meet the needs of its citizens, with a resulting rise in public distrust and questioning of organizations’ reasons for being. We often take as given that an organization’s purpose to produce economic value; and, although economic value can often add to social value, sometimes it does not. This disjuncture raises the question of meaningfulness.

The meaningfulness of an organization is its expression of purpose, values or worth. It involves a sense of significance that goes beyond material success or profitability; rather, it highlights how organizations can play a larger and more positive role in the world. It is an approach embraced by the next generation of workers, the millennials (in their mid-to-late 30s), who often focus on making a positive difference in the world and a contribution to society -- with organizations, not in spite of them.

Interest in meaningfulness has grown, fueled in part by developments in cognitive perspectives on strategic competition, cultural approaches to organizational resources, positive outlooks on realizing human potential at work, institutional insights on leadership dynamics, both heroic and sensational, new modes of communication that are social, digitalized and immediate, and the real-world failures of the dominant economic model to assure progress in material well-being for so many.

Making organizations meaningful matters, and it matters in a multitude of ways that are both immediate and far-reaching, ranging from environmental sustainability to social equality, and extending across multiple levels of analysis. Meaningfulness at micro levels alerts us to engaging employees in work so as to maximize human potential and, at macro levels, it turns attention to organizational identity, culture, reputation, legitimacy and character. By looking across levels, we can discover mechanisms that potentially amplify or even mute meaningfulness, as well as the contrast of meaninglessness. We might ask: What are the mechanisms – political, economic, social, cultural or institutional – which situate and produce organizational meaningfulness (or the lack thereof)? What mechanisms are particularly salient for reaching different constituencies? How might this vary across a range of social, cultural or economic settings? This is fertile ground for researchers, given that organizational expressions of meaningfulness can be: communicated through different mediums, including practices, language, strategic behavior, leadership, ethics or culture; directed towards a varied set of stakeholders; and signaled strategically or symbolically, implicitly or explicitly.

The theme invites a wide-ranging spectrum of theoretical perspectives, methods, and applications, both classic and contemporary, which investigate those processes and outcomes that are associated with making organizations meaningful or perhaps even meaningless. Some potential questions to explore:
• How does organizational meaningfulness arise from broader systems of meaning embedded in industries, geographic regions, institutions, and societal cultures? What organizational actions and strategies effectively make organizations more (or less) meaningful?

• What are the intentional and unintentional ways in which organizations become meaningful? What might be some of the intended or unintended consequences?

• What are the positive ways of making organizations meaningful, internally (for employees) and externally (for other stakeholders)? How might organizations’ social initiatives, like CSR or sustainability, play a role? How do hybrid organizations that combine economics and ideology create meaning for their varied constituencies?

• How do individuals in organizations construct the meaning of their work and of the organization itself? How do organizational structures, identities and cultures contribute to individuals’ understanding of the significance (or insignificance) of what they do? And what are the cross-level effects between micro and macro levels?

• What might be the affective, behavioral and cognitive mechanisms by which organizations make meaning or fail to do so? Might these mechanisms be more (or less) effective with different demographic groups or generations (such as millennials)?

• If theories of organizational identity, culture and institutionalism have at their heart the creation and management of meaning, how do these different framings illuminate the processes of making organizations meaningful, for individuals or collectives? What would it mean, for instance, to have a culture of purpose?

• Can we begin to describe a typology of organizational meaningfulness? How can organizations move between or prioritize purpose and profits effectively?

• How is organizational meaningfulness associated with evaluation and valuation, by focal audiences, especially in new, emerging or changing markets? How do new (or revised) meanings translate to valuation criteria in the market?

• What are the connections between technologies and their labels in creating the meaning of new entrepreneurial ventures, innovations or new market categories?

• What are the implications of the changing nature of organizations and organizational work for making meaningfulness? For what types of organizations does meaningfulness matter, especially those beyond the corporate form?

• What are the failures in making organizations meaningful? How might organizations find (or recover) meaningfulness in the wake of its demise?

As we gather in Anaheim, I invite you to think expansively and creatively about processes of Making Organizations Meaningful. See you there!

Mary Ann Glynn
Vice President and 2016 Program Chair, Academy of Management
Deadline for ALL Submissions:
January 12, 2016, 5:00 PM ET (New York Time)

Message from the 2016 AOM Chairs:
Mary Ann Glynn (Program Chair) and Carol Kulik (PDW Chair)

In just a few months, we will be gathering in Anaheim for the 2016 Meeting of the Academy of Management. We invite you to help us develop an intellectually vibrant program. We look forward to receiving your submission. To ensure that your proposal is submitted correctly and that it will be reviewed for inclusion in the program, please carefully read through all of the guidelines and instructions in the pages that follow. Our advice is to submit early. The submission website is scheduled to open in mid-November and the submission deadline is January 12, 2016. By submitting early, you will create a window that will allow for the possible identification and resolution of any technical issues before the final deadline.

If you wait until the last minute, you are more vulnerable to errors, such as technical connectivity issues, omission of a participant, and failure to finalize your submission. Division Program and PDW Chairs have a short period of time to check-in and assign for review all of the submissions before making final decisions. Any submission that is not finalized or does not follow all the proper guidelines (specified on the following pages) will automatically NOT be reviewed. We don’t want this to happen to your work. So please submit early and allow time for any necessary corrections.

Thank you!

General Submission Information

Submission Types

What is a PDW?
Professional Development Workshops (PDWs) are a platform for colleagues to share knowledge and expertise and foster the professional development of workshop participants. It is an opportunity to develop innovative and creative workshops that will benefit Academy members. The PDW program is coordinated by the Academy’s many divisions, interest groups, and theme committees.

The Professional Development Workshops run on Friday and Saturday, from 8 am - 8 pm each day, with additional All-Academy Theme Workshops scheduled on Sunday. In contrast to the refereed scholarly program that has a double blind review process and standardized time blocks and formats, the PDWs include a wide variety of session formats, are a minimum of 2 hours in length, and are reviewed by the corresponding PDW Chairs. These workshops include Doctoral Consortia and Junior Faculty Consortia.

Each PDW Chair has the ability to decrease the duration of any submitted Professional Development Workshop if he/she feels it would better serve the division’s member experience. The minimum amount of time a PDW can be reduced to is 1.5 hours. Submitters also have the ability to request a minimum duration of 1.5 hours if they feel it would better serve the workshop, session flow, and attendee engagement. The 1.5 hour duration request must be documented in the uploaded proposal document itself at the time of submission. NOTE: When submitting the PDW in the online submission system, it will still need to be submitted with a minimum duration of 2 hours. If the proposal is accepted, the PDW Chair will reduce the duration to 1.5 hours on the submitter’s behalf. Submitters should check each division’s individual call to identify submission preferences.
What is a scholarly submission?
Scholarly submissions include paper, symposium, and caucus submissions. Scholarly submissions are scheduled in standardized time blocks, room configurations, and are equipped with a standard audio-visual package.

Paper Submissions
A paper refers to a fully developed manuscript on a scholarly topic. Papers represent the majority of the submissions and comprise the majority of scholarly sessions on the program. Papers with a common theme are grouped into paper sessions on the Annual Meeting program. A paper can only be submitted to one division. There are two types of paper sessions: Division (Traditional) Paper sessions and Discussion Paper sessions.

1. Division (Traditional) Paper sessions: Each author will have a set amount of time to present his/her work, and group discussions will follow after all presentations have been made. These sessions are comprised of accepted papers which are grouped together by the Division Program Chairs based upon common themes reflecting the interests and domains of their divisions. The Session Chair/Discussant is responsible for managing the session time, facilitating discussion, and encouraging participants to go online to evaluate the session afterward.

2. Discussion Paper sessions: These are sessions for promising papers that meet the acceptance criteria, but would benefit from further development. The focus of these sessions should be on the authors receiving constructive feedback for further development of the paper and sharing of research experiences with others who share similar research interests. Each session should have three to four papers with a Discussant whose role is to provide constructive feedback to the authors.

Paper Review Process
The blind review process exists to help protect the integrity of the submission and review process. Papers are double-blind reviewed, and are evaluated on clarity, analysis, methodological rigor and overall quality. Double-blind review means that author and submitter information is NOT known to the reviewers, and reviewer information is NOT known to the authors or submitter.

Symposium Submissions
Symposium sessions are the second type of refereed session in which a number of speakers discuss a common topic or theme in a manner that brings new insights to the subject. Symposia can be submitted to up to three divisions. There are two types of symposia: Panel Symposia engage a group of panelists in a formal interactive discussion while Presenter Symposia involve a series of authored papers on a preset theme.

1. Panel Symposia: The purpose of a Panel Symposium is to engage a group of panelists in an interactive discussion. There are no titles associated with the panelists’ presentations. Proposals for panel discussions should include clear descriptions of the topics to be discussed and the procedures that will be used to manage the discussion among panelists and with the audience.

2. Presenter Symposia: Presenter Symposia involve a series of authored papers on a preset theme. Symposia are judged on overall quality, interest to Academy members, relevance to the divisions or interest groups to which they are submitted, and innovation and contribution.
Symposia can be singly sponsored by a division / interest group, or jointly sponsored by up to 3 divisions / interest groups. In a Presenter Symposium, titles are associated with each presentation. Presenter Symposia can involve co-authored papers and co-authors will be listed in the printed program.

Symposium Review Process
Symposia are single-blind reviewed, and are judged on overall quality, interest to Academy members, relevance to the division or interest group to which they are submitted, and innovation and contribution. Single-blind review means that author and submitter information IS known to the reviewers, but reviewer information is NOT known to the authors or submitter.

What is a Caucus?
The premise of a caucus is primarily to provide an opportunity for scholars to innovate and to share and discuss emergent ideas that are still in the incubation stage. We encourage submission of innovative proposals that provide conference participants with opportunities to network, collaborate, and develop new ideas that include, but are not limited to, the conference theme, “Making Organizations Meaningful”. Caucuses are designed to provide a convenient, informal way for AOM members with shared interests to find one another and to develop a sense of community within the larger AOM structure as well as explore potential collaborations in a forum open to all interested AOM members. Caucus submissions are reviewed and decided upon by the Caucus Committee.

Important Submission Notes
- Submitters do NOT need to be AOM members to submit a proposal to the Annual Meeting.
- If a proposal is accepted, participants must register to attend the Annual Meeting.
- All participants attending the Annual Meeting must be AOM Members and registered for the Annual Meeting.

It is recommended that you contact the preferred sponsoring division, interest group, or committee to discuss your proposal prior to submitting. Please contact the preferred sponsor by December 11, 2015 so that you have enough time to finalize your proposal/submission and submit by January 12, 2016 at 5:00pm ET (NY Time).
Policies, Ethics, Rule of 1, and Rule of 3

Participation and Attendance at PDW and Scholarly Sessions

To attend the Annual Meeting conference a program participant must be an AOM member and must be registered for the conference. Program participants are highly encouraged to personally present their submissions.

- All PDW participants listed on a submission must be available to participate from Friday through Saturday.
- All participants on submitted papers, symposia, and caucuses must be available to participate from Sunday through Tuesday.
- All participants on submitted AAT PDWs and symposia must be available to participate on Sunday.

Rule of 1
The Rule of One for PDWs
PDW Proposals can be submitted to only ONE Division, Interest Group, or Committee. It is recommended that you contact the preferred sponsoring division, interest group, or committee to discuss your proposal prior to submitting. During the submission process you will have the opportunity to suggest other divisions, interest groups, and committees that would also be interested in the proposal.

The Rule of One for Papers
"A paper can only be submitted to one division or interest group." This long-standing Academy rule is similar to the requirements of most journals.

Rule of 3
The Rule of Three for PDWs
"No one may submit to or be associated with more than three (3) Professional Development Workshop (PDW) submissions to an Academy Meeting. No one may or appear on more than three (3) PDW sessions during the PDW Program from Friday to Sunday, regardless of whether the sessions are held on-site or off-site."

PDW Program appearances include all roles that are listed on the PDW program such as chairs, organizers, special guests, speakers, presenters, co-authors, and so on.

The Rule of Three for Papers and Symposia
"No one may submit to or be associated with more than three scholarly submissions (papers and/or symposia) to an Academy Meeting. No one may appear on more than three sessions during the refereed scholarly program from Sunday to Tuesday.

Scholarly Program appearances include all roles that are listed on the scholarly program such as chairs, organizers, special guests, discussants, speakers, presenters, co-authors, and so on.

The Rule of 3+3
The Rule of Three + Three (no more than three scholarly submissions + three workshop submissions) serves as a means to ensure broad participation of members. It reduces the likelihood of the program being dominated by a small handful of people, and it helps ensure that no one is committed to appear at more than one place at a time. When people make too many commitments to participate in the conference program, scheduling conflicts often arise. As a consequence, participants may find it difficult to honor their commitments, and the program and the experiences of the attendees will suffer as a result. People who agree to participate in an all-day consortium, for example, are expected to participate for the entire day. They should not leave after an hour to attend another session. No presenter should have to arrive late to one session or leave early to present in another one. Organizers, other participants, and especially the attendees are all frustrated by such behavior. The Rule of Three + Three helps reduce these problems. Participants are better able to fully honor their commitments, and attendees can attend events knowing that the featured speakers will actually be there throughout the event.

How is the Rule of Three + Three enforced?
The PDW and scholarly program submission system will automatically block submissions that violate the rule. The system will inform the submitter of the rule violation and indicate which participant has already been associated with three other submissions. The submitter will have to revise the proposal by removing the violation. The proposal can be revised and resubmitted by the deadline without penalty. A person who agrees to be listed on more than three PDW proposals or three scholarly submissions puts all of those submissions at risk of being dropped from the program. Therefore, it is in the interest of submitters to ensure that everyone understands and follows the rule. Clearly, the implications of including a violator of the Rule of Three + Three on a submission are far-reaching.

NOTE: It is the responsibility of each participant to understand and follow the Rule of Three + Three. If you have committed to participate in three workshops and three scholarly submissions, you should decline further requests.

The following are exempt from the Rule of Three + Three:
* Academy, Division, Interest Group, and Committee Officers are exempt.
* Academy and Division General Sessions (Executive Committee Meetings, Division Business Meetings, Social Events) are exempt.
* Current and incoming editors-in-chief of Academy of Management publications as participants in sessions devoted exclusively to publishing and other AOM journal activities are exempt.
* If a person appears twice in a single session (e.g., as both organizer and speaker), it counts as one appearance.
* If a person appears on a two-day workshop, such as a Division's doctoral consortium, it counts as one appearance.
* Caucus organizers as participants in caucuses are exempt.
* Submissions to the Teaching and Learning Conference (TLC) as well as participation in TLC sessions are exempt.
AOM Code of Ethics

Members should notify appropriate division chairs or committees regarding the practices or actions of members they believe may violate Academy policies, rules, or general standards of ethical conduct. Standards of conduct that are particularly relevant to participation in the annual conference are summarized here:

1. Participation. To encourage meaningful exchange, Academy members should foster a climate of free interchange and constructive criticism within the Academy and be willing to share research findings and insights fully with other members.

2. Original Work and New Work. At the time of submission, submitted papers must not have been previously presented or scheduled for presentation at the AOM. Submitted papers must not have been published or accepted for publication. If a paper is under review, it must NOT appear in print before the Academy meeting.

3. Attendance and Commitments. ALL program participants must be AOM members AND registered (separate costs) for the conference in order to attend. The Academy is a voluntary association whose existence and operations are dependent on cooperation, involvement, and leadership from its members. Members should honor all professional commitments, including presentation of accepted papers and participation in scheduled roles, such as chair, discussant, or panelist. Program participants are highly encouraged to personally present their submission. If absence from a scheduled meeting is unavoidable, members must contact appropriate individuals and pursue suitable alternative arrangements. Leaders have the same responsibilities and should perform their obligations and responsibilities in a timely, diligent, and sensitive manner, without regard to friendships or personal gain.

4. Rigorous Scholarship. It is the duty of Academy members conducting research to design, implement, analyze, report, and present their findings rigorously. Research rigor includes careful design, execution, analysis, interpretation of results, and retention of data. Presentation of research should include treatment of the data that is honest and that reveals both strengths and weaknesses of findings.

Authorship and credit should be shared in correct proportion to the various parties' contributions. Whether published or not, ideas or concepts derived from others should be acknowledged, as should advice and assistance received. Authors should also guard against plagiarizing the work of others. Plagiarism is defined as:

The failure to give sufficient attribution to the words, ideas, or data of others that have been incorporated into a work, which an author submits for academic credit or other benefit. Attribution is sufficient if it adequately informs and, therefore, does not materially mislead a reasonable reader as to the source of the words, ideas, or data. Attribution (or the lack thereof) is materially misleading if it could cause a reasonable reader to be mistaken as to the source of the words, ideas, or data in a way that could benefit the author submitting the work. (Worthen, 2004: 444. Italic for emphasis added).

Submission Process

To submit your proposal, you will need to...

1. Go to the submission website and create a login account. Don’t forget to record the login information as you will need it to access the reviewers’ comments.

2. Enter the title, short title (for PDWs and symposia), and abstract of your submission using the following instructions:
   - Use Title Case for the submission title. Only the first letter of major title words should be in capital letters. Do NOT submit the title or abstract in all capital letters.    - Enter or copy and paste the submission title and abstract into their respective fields as is. Do not use the “enter” or “return” keys. The submission title and abstract should be single-spaced.

3. You may submit to up to three divisions or interest groups for symposium submissions. You will need to select three keywords for EACH division that will receive your submission.

4. Enter your submission ID number as a header on the first page of your submission. After completing the data entry process, you will see a page that summarizes all the information you have entered. This page includes a 5-digit, AOM submission ID number. Please reference this number whenever you contact the program chairs or technical support.

5. Upload your submission to the website. Your uploaded submission (for papers ONLY) should not include any author identifying information. Your submission must comply with the guidelines and formatting instructions, or your submission may not be checked in for review. TLC Call for Submissions

Academy of Management Teaching and Learning Conference (TLC@AOM)

The Academy of Management Teaching and Learning Conference (TLC@AOM) takes place during the 2016 Annual Academy of Management Meeting on Sunday, August 7, 2016. TLC@AOM is a “Conference within a Conference,” designed to support Academy members across all divisions in improving their teaching practice. TLC@AOM features both submitted and invited sessions that address teaching issues for educators at all levels of experience.

Format:
A 60 minute interactive session that includes some combination of presentation, discussion, participant reflection and application, simulation, or other form of interactivity. Audience interaction is an essential component of accepted submissions. Note: If your session requires more time (more than 60 minutes), please mention that in your submission since there may be opportunities to extend a few sessions based on the demonstrated need in the proposal.

All proposals must identify:
1) the level that the content of your submission targets (Undergraduate, Masters, Executive or Doctoral)
2) The format of the teaching in the proposal (traditional, online, experiential and service learning)
3) Type of audience most appropriate for your proposal (doctoral students, new tenure-track faculty, adjunct faculty, mid-career faculty, senior faculty, or program directors and deans)

Themes:
Proposals should also identify one or more of the following themes as the most appropriate:
1) Ensuring continuous improvement and innovation in teaching.
2) Designing or redesigning curriculum.
3) Addressing problems that arise with students, teaching assistants, or others that impact teaching practice.
4) Assessing learning and its associated challenges.
5) Building and leveraging teaching networks across geographic, national, and/or disciplinary boundaries.
6) Connecting teaching exercises to employers’ needs and global workplace trends.
7) Any other theme addressing teaching practice or issues relevant to management teaching.

In addition, special consideration will be given to proposals that connect the AOM Annual Conference theme, “Making Organizations Meaningful” to teaching practices or issues.

* Please note: Any proposal that appears to market a product or service is not suitable and will be rejected.

Criteria for Acceptance:
Reviewers will evaluate proposals based on the following criteria:
1) Clarity of proposal narrative and session format
2) Evidence of a dynamic and interactive session (well described interaction components)
3) Relevance to an identified audience of participants
4) Provision of useful “take-aways” for participants
5) Interest to multiple Academy divisions or interest groups
If you would like to discuss your ideas prior to submitting, please contact tlcprogram@aom.org by December 11, 2015. Proposals, including the mandatory cover sheet, may not exceed 6 pages. The cover sheet must include a statement to indicate that ALL presenters on the proposal agree to register and attend the 2016 TLC@AOM Conference should the submission be accepted. As appropriate, proposals may provide links to online resources or videos for further clarification; any such ancillary material must be easily accessible to reviewers. The deadline for all submissions is Tuesday, January 12, 2016 at 5:00pm ET (NY Time). Please submit to http://aom.org/annualmeeting/submission/.
